Jim Corsi's number raised to roof

The Concordia University Department of Recreation and Athletics and the men's hockey team held a tribute to Jim Corsi on Sunday at the Ed Meagher Arena on the Loyola campus in N.D.G. A 2001-2002 Concordia season record attendance of 292 watched as sweater No. 1, Corsi's number, was retired and hoisted above the rink. This is only the second number to be retired by Concordia, the first being Maurice Richard's No. 9 which was retired in the fall of 2000.

Corsi played soccer and hockey for Concordia in the 1970s, earning All-Canadians honors in both sports. But it is hockey that Corsi is remembered for. In his final year of hockey, the goaltender had six shutouts and a 1.16 goals-against average. His exploits on the rink allowed him to be the first recipient of the Senator Joseph A. Sullivan Trophy in 1976, presented to the outstanding Canadian Interuniversity Sport hockey player.

Following graduation he went on to play for the Quebec Nordiques in the WHA and for the Edmonton Oilers in the NHL. He completed his playing career in the Italian first division and represented Italy at several World Championships and at the 1984 Olympics.

Corsi was inducted into the Concordia Sports Hall of Fame in 1997. He also served as the Student Athlete Academic Support Program coordinator from 1999 to 2001. He is currently the goaltender coach of the Buffalo Sabres of the NHL.

The ceremony was held prior to the varsity men's hockey game versus the McGill Redmen. Unfortunately the Stingers did not fare so well in the game, losing 8-5 to McGill. Next Saturday at 7 p.m., Concordia will travel to McGill at the McConnell Arena for the Corey Cup. The Corey cup symbolizes university hockey supremacy in Montreal. The Stingers took the cup last year and are gearing up for another fight this season. McGill is in third place of the OUA far east standings with a 8-4-2 record and Concordia trails just behind the Redmen in fourth place with a 5-7-1 record.

Women's hockey conquers McGill

The Concordia women's hockey team captured a much-needed victory, defeating the McGill Martlets 4-2 on Friday at the Ed Meagher Arena. The McGill Martlets are in first place in the QSSF with a 7-1 standing. Concordia sits in third place with a 6-2-1 record. In second place is the Ottawa Gee-Gees.

McGill, Concordia and Ottawa are all ranked fifth in the Canadian Interuniversity Sport's top 10 list. Future games between these three teams will prove to be very competitive and exciting. Concordia has lost 6-5 to the Gee-Gees and has tied them 4-4. Versus McGill, the Stingers have lost 4-2 and won 4-2 in addition to Friday's win of 4-2. Concordia's next game against Ottawa will be this Friday, Jan. 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the Ed Meagher Arena on the Loyola campus and the Stingers will play at McGill on Wednesday, Jan. 30 at 7 p.m.
